“ Lil Arsen.... You have made you way into people's hearts that lives far and near.... you are a fighter and a trooper.... for your amazing mommy, life will never be the same without you. But you will be the sunshine that shines down on her, you will be the wind that brushes against her face, you will be the moon shining ever so bright, you will be the stars that shine at night and for every star there's a reason of why you love your mommy, You will be the birds that are singing and you will be the leaves falling from the trees. So no matter what season or whether it is day or night your mommy will always have you with her.
