“ Every time Billy passed the house he waved. Every time we passed his house he also waved back. When my dad was alive, he and Billy would call each other after every rain shower comparing how much water they got in their water gauges. I remember Billy as a happy smiling man full of fun with sparkling eyes. Once he had some watermelon out in front of his house in a little cart. I stopped and asked him if they were for sale. He said they might be if you want to buy some. I bought one and he gave me one. Another time we stopped to buy some corn from him. He quoted a price and mom said ok. Billy went and picked twice as much as we were going to get then refused to take payment for the corn. I'm really going to miss not being able to exchange waves with him. On behalf of the Lendon Ollis family i extend our deepest most sincere condolences.
