“ My mother is, was and always will be my best friend. She was always there ready to help and listen when I needed her her the most. Since she passed there has not been 1 day when I have not called her phone or listened to any voicemails she left. Just to hear her voice is a great thing for me. She did not judge just listening and loving me. I know that she was upset that we didn't get those 26 years to play with in the nursing home like she always wanted. She wanted all her kids in the same nursing home so we could race around in wheelchairs. I think she would have beat us all, she always had a lead foot and so was a speed demon. I can see her now in a green wheelchair racing around in the sky. It seems like it was just yesterday that she was asking for more banana popsicles. I love her with my whole heart and I know she loved her kids, grandkids and great grandkids the same way. She may not have seen all her family every day but she loved them just the same. She is the best mommy a girl could want. She was a lucky mother who had a lot of love from her family and she gave as much to all of us. The last thing she said to me was that she loved us all with her whole heart. She said that she might not be here for our tomorrows but that she would be loving us no matter where she went. I wish with my whole heart that she is were she wants to be and that when we talk to her she will answer with all the love she has inside her heart. I will miss her something awful but I know she will always be there for me no matter what. I am very glad that I was able to spend her last days on earth with her. I would not have been anywhere else in the world but by her side at that time in her life. She will be missed, she will be loved and she will be remembered always. I LOVE YOU MOMMY.

“ When I was a child and moved to New Mexico to meet my grandma again. After several years, I wasn't much more than just a little heathen that thought he could get away with anything. I was very quickly put in my place and learned that my grandma was not having it! After getting in trouble with the police, that she was good friends with, they brought me to her instead of to jail. He already knew she would correct every behavior that I had going wrong for me at that time in my life. It was that I then learned that throwing a tantrum and a fit to get my way was not the right answer!! Instead, I needed to work hard. I needed to learn the right ways to get what I wanted and needed ! My grandma would sit on me instead of yelling. She taught me that words in a quiet tone are way more scary than yelling and anger! Never again did I test the patient the kindness and the love that my grandmother gave me every day! Thank you, Grandma for everything that you've done for me in my life, there is several more memories that are much happier than this one, but this was the one that changed my life for the better shaped me and helped me to become the man. I am today over 24 years later so thank you. I love you and I will forever Miss you!!😭❤️❤️❤️❤️

“ The world lost a beautiful person. My mom always had a positive attitude about everything, even in her darkest hours. I am grateful for every minute we had, from the lengthy phone conversations about nothing and everything to the silly moments we shared. She will forever be in our hearts and always on our minds. I am a better person because of her. Mom, I Love You!💕💕 Kazandra

I met Lela through the senior center, I could tell right away she was the life of the party, she was always laughing and dancing, she was one tough lady, I always told her, she was my favorite. I am so honored to have met her. She told me to smile when I think of her, and I definitely will, she is at rest now singing and dancing and forever out of pain, I loved her, and will miss her
Love, Patty ❤️🌸

This season has been hard on us kids. We miss you so much and just wish we could have five more minutes together. You know that I love you and always will. You are the best mom any girl could be have. You helped and not sat in judgment of people. I think that I will move to a retirement home and do that racing around for all of us all. That would be fun..I love you very much mommy. I just wished we had more time.
